

Contributors

Dr Jakkie Cilliers

Jakkie Cilliers holds a DLitt et Phil in Strategic Studies from the University of South Africa. He has fourteen years of military service as an artillery officer. From 1988 to 1991 he served first as systems analyst and then as divisional manager of operations research at Analysis, Management and Systems (Pty) Ltd, until he co-founded ISS in 1990. He has presented numerous papers at conferences and seminars, is a regular commentator on local and international radio and television and has attended numerous international conferences. He regularly lectures on security and defence issues and has published a substantial number of articles and research papers, while also editing and contributing to a variety of books and publications. Dr Cilliers is the Executive Director of the Institute for Security Studies.

Mr Richard Cornwell

Richard Cornwell is head of the Operational African Security and Information Service at the Institute for Security Studies. Prior to joining the Institute, he was Head of Current Affairs at the Africa Institute and editor of its quarterly journal, Africa Insight. He was born in London and came to South Africa in 1970 as a Leverhulme scholar. He worked for five years as a military historian before joining the Africa Institute in 1979.

Ms Virginia Gamba

Virginia Gamba is head of the Arms Management Programme at the Institute for Security Studies. Previously, she was head of the Project on Disarmament and Conflict Resolution at the United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research in Geneva, and was a professor in the Department of War Studies, King's College, London. She has also served as special advisor to the Argentine ministries of Defence and Foreign Affairs.

Ms Sarah Meek

Sarah Meek is a senior researcher on the Arms Management Programme at the Institute for Security Studies. Her areas of research are light weapons proliferation in Southern Africa, local and national disarmament initiatives and the role of international organisations in arms control. Previously she has been a researcher at the Centre for Nonproliferation Studies in Monterey, California and worked for the United Nations Centre for Disarmament Affairs in New York.

Mr Hussein Solomon

Hussein Solomon is currently the director of research at the African Centre for the Constructive Resolution of Disputes (ACCORD) in Durban. He was a senior researcher at the Institute for Security Studies between January 1996 and May 1998. He has written extensively on regional security, foreign policy and population movements. He previously worked as a lecturer in the Department of Political Science at the University of Durban-Westville and as a Research Fellow at the Centre for Southern African Studies at the University of the Western Cape.