

Contributors

Angela McIntyre is a senior researcher and project leader at the ISS, where she has coordinated research on children in armed conflict for the past three years.

Afua Twum Danso is currently a doctoral candidate at the Centre of West African Studies at the University of Birmingham, UK. Her research centres around the challenges confronting childhood in West Africa and the implementation of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child.

Ana Leão is a Senior Researcher for the Human Security Programme at the ISS. Prior to this she undertook research in Mozambique on small arms and light weapons for the Arms Management Programme and on the social reintegration of former child soldiers for the Interact Project. She has over ten years of experience in the development sector and worked in Mozambique and East Timor before joining the ISS.

Imogen Parsons is a PhD candidate at the London School of Economics, Department of International Relations. She has conducted extensive fieldwork in Angola and published a number of articles on the subjects of demobilisation and reintegration, peace-building and post-conflict reconstruction.

Dr. Emmanuel Kwesi Aning teaches at the Legon Centre for International Affairs (LECIA) and serves as a Senior Fellow at African Security Dialogue & Research (ASDR) a policy think-tank on security issues based in Accra, Ghana.

Aki Stavrou is a development professional with a 20-year record in research and project management in the fields of reconstruction and development, demobilisation and reintegration, post-conflict livelihoods, urban safety and communications. He has worked most of his life in Africa but currently teaches and undertakes research with the Centre for Sustainable Livelihoods, at the National University of Ireland, Cork.

Dr. Angela Veale is a lecturer in Applied Psychology, National University of Ireland, Cork. Her research and publications focus on children and re-integration in post-conflict contexts, and on unaccompanied minors, asylum seekers and refugee families and youth.

Dr. Adedeji Ebo is an Associate Professor, and former Head of the Department of Political Science and Defence Studies, Nigerian Defence Academy, Kaduna. He is currently Senior Fellow and Coordinator, Africa Working Group at the Geneva Centre for Democratic Control of Armed Forces (DCAF), Geneva, Switzerland.